I. READING COMPREHENSION

A. The text

❶ It's not often that you are so clearly presented with two diverging roads of possibility, of two stark choices of where you want to go with your life. In another reality, possibly I would be likely living in New York, comfortable and working hard, near my family and friends, and counting down the days until my meager vacation hours kicked in. But instead, I wanted something else and I took it.

❷ By the time I hit my 20's, I took my first leap of faith and moved to Spain to teach English. There, I soon realized I wanted to have a life of travel. I wanted to write and share my stories with the world. My little travel blog Young Adventuress, which I had created on a whim, was exploding with possibilities.

❸ Once that fire was ignited in my heart, there was no turning back, and I knew I was not ready to go down the path that was expected of me. I realized I had to choose between going back to the familiar, or jumping off a cliff into the unknown. I looked deep within myself and, for the first time, found the courage to put my dreams before everyone else, to truly believe in myself and what I could accomplish – and I jumped.

The smart connected home is the next stage in the evolution of our homes and how we interact with them. Just as lighting (will go / had gone / has gone) from candles, to gas, to electricity, so are the many systems in our homes evolving as technology (declines / advances / increases). In the case of lighting, the next stage is smart wireless control, so you (no longer / any longer / any more) have to flip a switch: the smart home will do it for you using motion sensors, or by (answering / responding / confirming) to a voice command. While this new technology may seem daunting and complicated, the (adventure / advent / admission) of the artificially intelligent assistant and voice control has made it a lot (easy / easiest / easier) to adopt. So, when considering any new connected gadget for your home consider first what system you want to use to control it.
